

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DOUGLAS J. STOUT, et al.,
Plaintiffs,
v.
GAVIN NEWSOM,
Defendant.

No. 2:20-cv-01674-CKD P

Plaintiffs are s
42 U.S.C. § 1983. Th
U.S.C. § 636(b)(1).

I. Screening Standard

The court is required to screen complaints brought by prisoners seeking relief against a governmental entity or officer or employee of a governmental entity. 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(a). The court must dismiss a complaint or portion thereof if the prisoner has raised claims that are legally “frivolous or malicious,” that fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, or that seek monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief. 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b)(1),(2).

A claim is legally frivolous when it lacks an arguable basis either in law or in fact. Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 325 (1989); Franklin v. Murphy, 745 F.2d 1221, 1227-28 (9th Cir. 1984). The court may, therefore, dismiss a claim as frivolous where it is based on an

1 indisputably meritless legal theory or where the factual contentions are clearly baseless. Neitzke, 2 490 U.S. at 327. The critical inquiry is whether a constitutional claim, however inartfully
3 pleaded, has an arguable legal and factual basis. See Jackson v. Arizona, 885 F.2d 639, 640 (9th 4 Cir. 1989); Franklin, 745 F.2d at 1227.

5 In order to avoid dismissal for failure to state a claim a complaint must contain more than 6 “naked assertions,” “labels and conclusions” or “a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause 7 of action.” Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555-557 (2007). In other words, 8 “[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory 9 statements do not suffice.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009). Furthermore, a claim 10 upon which the court can grant relief has facial plausibility. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570. “A 11 claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw 12 the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Iqbal, 556 U.S.
13 at 678. When considering whether a complaint states a claim upon which relief can be granted, 14 the court must accept the allegations as true, Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 93-94 (2007), and 15 construe the complaint in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, see Scheuer v. Rhodes, 416 16 U.S. 232, 236 (1974).

17 II. Allegations in the Complaint

18 Plaintiffs are two inmates at Mule Creek State Prison who filed this case as a purported 19 class action challenging prison overcrowding allegedly creating unsafe prison conditions due to 20 the COVID-19 pandemic. Plaintiffs allege that overcrowding prevents social distancing practices 21 within the prison to reduce the risk of contracting COVID-19. Specifically, plaintiffs contend 22 that double celling inmates makes it impossible to practice social distancing and that the use of 23 sentencing enhancements under state law have led to longer prison sentences and an increased 24 prison population.

25 Plaintiffs name Governor Gavin Newsom as the sole defendant in this case, being sued in 26 his individual and official capacities.

27 ////

28 ////

1 By way of relief, plaintiffs request the retroactive nullification of all state law sentencing 2 enhancements, compensatory and punitive damages, and the immediate release of all plaintiffs 3 who are not sentenced to death.

4 III. Legal Standards

5 A. Class Action

6 While plaintiffs characterize this lawsuit as a class action, they have made no motion 7 pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 seeking to have the court certify this matter as a 8 class action. Moreover, plaintiffs are non-lawyers proceeding without counsel. It is well 9 established that a layperson cannot ordinarily represent the interests of a class. See McShane v.
10 United States, 366 F.2d 286 (9th Cir. 1966). This rule becomes almost absolute when, as here, 11 the putative class representatives are incarcerated and proceeding pro se. Oxendine v. Williams, 12 509 F.2d 1405, 1407 (4th Cir. 1975). In direct terms, plaintiffs cannot “fairly and adequately 13 protect the interests of the class,” as required by Rule 23(a)(4) of the Federal Rules of Civil 14 Procedure. See Martin v. Middendorf, 420 F. Supp. 779 (D.D.C. 1976). This action, therefore, 15 will not be construed as a class action and instead will be construed as an individual civil suit 16 brought by plaintiffs.

17 B. Conditions of Confinement

18 Plaintiffs may challenge their conditions of confinement under the Eighth Amendment.
19 Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825 (1994). In order for a prison official to be held liable for 20 alleged unconstitutional conditions of confinement, the prisoner must allege facts that satisfy a 21 two-prong test. Peralta v. Dillard, 744 F.3d 1076, 1082 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Farmer v.
22 Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 837 (1994)). The first prong is an objective prong, which requires that 23 the deprivation be “sufficiently serious.” Lemire v. Cal. Dep’t of Corr. & Rehab., 726 F.3d 1062, 24 1074 (9th Cir. 2013) (citing Farmer, 511 U.S. at 834). In order to be sufficiently serious, the 25 prison official’s “act or omission must result in the denial of the ‘minimal civilized measure of 26 life’s necessities.’” Lemire, 726 F.3d at 1074. The objective prong is not satisfied in cases where 27 prison officials provide prisoners with “adequate shelter, food, clothing, sanitation, medical care, 28 and personal safety.” Johnson v. Lewis, 217 F.3d 726, 731 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting Hoptowit v.

1 Ray, 682 F.2d 1237, 1246 (9th Cir. 1982)). “[R]outine discomfort inherent in the prison setting” 2 does not rise to the level of a constitutional violation. Johnson v. Lewis, 217 F.3d at 732 (“[m]ore 3 modest deprivations can also form the objective basis of a violation, but only if such deprivations 4 are lengthy or ongoing”). Rather, extreme deprivations are required to make out a conditions of 5 confinement claim, and only those deprivations denying the minimal civilized measure of life’s 6 necessities are sufficiently grave to form the basis of an Eighth Amendment violation. Farmer, 7 511 U.S. at 834; Hudson v. McMillian, 503 U.S. 1, 9 (1992). The circumstances, nature, and 8 duration of the deprivations are critical in determining whether the conditions complained of are 9 grave enough to form the basis of a viable Eighth Amendment claim. Johnson v. Lewis, 217 F.3d 10 at 731.

11 The second prong of an Eighth Amendment violation focuses on the subjective intent of 12 the prison official. Peralta, 774 F.3d at 1082 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Farmer, 511 U.S. at 837).
13 The deliberate indifference standard requires a showing that the prison official acted or failed to 14 act despite the prison official’s knowledge of a substantial risk of serious harm to the prisoner.
15 Id. (citing Farmer, 511 U.S. at 842); see also Redman v. Cnty. of San Diego, 942 F.2d 1435, 1439 16 (9th Cir. 1991). Mere negligence on the part of the prison official is not sufficient to establish 17 liability. Farmer, 511 U.S. at 835.

18 C. Linkage Requirement

19 The civil rights statute requires that there be an actual connection or link between the 20 actions of the defendants and the deprivation alleged to have been suffered by plaintiffs. See 21 Monell v. Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658 (1978); Rizzo v. Goode, 423 U.S. 362
22 (1976). The Ninth Circuit has held that “[a] person ‘subjects’ another to the deprivation of a 23 constitutional right, within the meaning of section 1983, if he does an affirmative act, participates 24 in another’s affirmative acts or omits to perform an act which he is legally required to do that 25 causes the deprivation of which complaint is made.” Johnson v. Duffy, 588 F.2d 740, 743 (9th 26 Cir. 1978) (citation omitted). In order to state a claim for relief under section 1983, plaintiffs 27 must link each named defendant with some affirmative act or omission that demonstrates a 28 violation of federal rights.

D. Supervisory Liability

2 Plaintiffs name the Governor of California as the only defendant in this action due to his 3 supervisory role over state agencies including the California Department of Corrections and 4 Rehabilitation. However, government officials may not be held liable for the unconstitutional 5 conduct of their subordinates under a theory of respondeat superior. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S.
6 662, 677 (2009) (“In a § 1983 suit ... the term “supervisory liability” is a misnomer. Absent 7 vicarious liability, each Government official, his or her title notwithstanding is only liable for his 8 or her own misconduct.”). When the named defendant holds a supervisory position, the causal 9 link between the defendant and the claimed constitutional violation must be specifically alleged; 10 that is, a plaintiff must allege some facts indicating that the defendant either personally 11 participated in or directed the alleged deprivation of constitutional rights or knew of the violations 12 and failed to act to prevent them. See Fayle v. Stapley, 607 F.2d 858, 862 (9th Cir. 1979); Taylor 13 v. List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989); Mosher v. Saalfeld, 589 F.2d 438, 441 (9th Cir.
14 1978).

E. Official Capacity Claims

16 Plaintiffs may not bring a suit for damages against defendant in his official capacity. “The 17 Eleventh Amendment bars suits for money damages in federal court against a state, its agencies, 18 and state officials in their official capacities.” Aholelei v. Dept. of Public Safety, 488 F.3d 1144, 19 1147 (9th Cir. 2007) (citations omitted). However, the Eleventh Amendment does not bar suits 20 seeking damages against state officials in their personal capacities, Hafer v. Melo, 502 U.S. 21, 21 30 (1991); Porter v. Jones, 319 F.3d 483, 491 (9th Cir. 2003), or suits for declaratory or injunctive 22 relief brought against state officials in their official capacities, Austin v. State Indus. Ins. System, 23 939 F.2d 676, 680 fn. 2 (9th Cir. 1991).

F. Habeas Versus § 1983 Action

25 Plaintiffs have filed a § 1983 action seeking their immediate release from custody.
26 However, when a state prisoner challenges the legality of his custody and the relief he seeks is the 27 determination of his entitlement to an earlier or immediate release, his sole federal remedy is a 28 writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. Preiser v. Rodriguez, 411 U.S. 475, 500

1 (1973). A federal habeas corpus action is only available if plaintiffs have been convicted and 2 have exhausted their state court remedies with respect to the claims for relief. See 28 U.S.C. § 3 2254(b)(1)(A).

4 IV. Analysis

5 The court has reviewed plaintiffs' complaint and finds that it fails to state a claim upon 6 which relief can be granted under federal law against defendant Newsom. The complaint does 7 not demonstrate how defendant Newsom, through his own individual actions, has violated 8 plaintiff's Eighth Amendment rights. Plaintiffs may not sue any official on the theory that the 9 official is liable for the unconstitutional conduct of his or her subordinates. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 10 U.S. 662, 679 (2009). For these reasons, plaintiffs' complaint must be dismissed. The court will, 11 however, grant leave to file an amended complaint.

12 If plaintiffs choose to amend the complaint, they must demonstrate how the conditions 13 complained of have resulted in a deprivation of their constitutional rights. See Ellis v. Cassidy, 14 625 F.2d 227 (9th Cir. 1980). Also, in any amended complaint, plaintiffs must allege in specific 15 terms how each named defendant is involved. There can be no liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 16 unless there is some affirmative link or connection between a defendant's actions and the claimed 17 deprivation. Rizzo v. Goode, 423 U.S. 362 (1976). Furthermore, vague and conclusory 18 allegations of official participation in civil rights violations are not sufficient. Ivey v. Board of 19 Regents, 673 F.2d 266, 268 (9th Cir. 1982).

20 Finally, plaintiffs are informed that the court cannot refer to a prior pleading in order to 21 make any amended complaint complete. Local Rule 220 requires that an amended complaint be 22 complete in itself without reference to any prior pleading. This is because, as a general rule, an 23 amended complaint supersedes the original complaint. See Loux v. Rhay, 375 F.2d 55, 57 (9th 24 Cir. 1967). Once an amended complaint is filed, the original pleading no longer serves any 25 function in the case. Therefore, in an amended complaint, as in an original complaint, each claim 26 and the involvement of each defendant must be sufficiently alleged.

1 V. Plain Language Summary for Pro Se Party

2 The following information is meant to explain this order in plain English and is not 3 intended as legal advice.

4 The court is dismissing your complaint because you have not alleged how the defendant is 5 individually responsible for the violation of your Eighth Amendment rights. However, the court 6 is giving you one opportunity to fix this problem. If you choose to do so, you may file an 7 amended complaint within the time provided in this order.

8 In accordance with the above, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that:

9 1. Plaintiffs' complaint is dismissed.

10 2. Plaintiffs are granted thirty days from the date of service of this order to file an 11 amended complaint that complies with the requirements of the Civil Rights Act, the Federal Rules 12 of Civil Procedure, and the Local Rules of Practice. The amended complaint must bear the 13 docket number assigned this case and must be labeled "Amended Complaint." Failure to file an 14 amended complaint in accordance with this order will result in a recommendation that this action 15 be dismissed.
